INTRODUCTION
One of the factors determining the success of students in use textbooks that are determined by the quality of these textbooks. High quality textbooks can provide optimal results in the learning process. Learning is one of the skills needed and developed in language learning. One way to improve reading learning is by reading several books or textbooks according to what they need. In this context students are not only required to be able to read, but students must be able to understand what they have read. But in fact many students find problems in reading comprehension. If the textbook used does not meet the criteria, it is feared that students’ understanding will differ from the purpose of the textbook content. Therefore as a teacher those who use textbooks need to first analyze the content of teaching materials in the textbooks. The book that the researcher will be analyzing is a textbook used by students and teachers who use the 2013 revision curriculum.

Being able to speak English fluently is the aims of English skills. In teaching English in class, the teacher faces various problems. These problems occur when the teacher teaches language competence to students, one of which is when the teacher teaches speaking competence. Reiser and Dick (1996, p. 316) says that teachers can use different strategies of teaching to achieve teaching-learning goals and objectives. It’s mean that the teacher’s role is to make effective strategies in order to students’ educational needs, whose general purpose is to communicate using the language being learned. These imply that it is teachers’ responsibility to make students speak English by employing suitable teaching strategies of speaking. To solve these problems, the teacher uses teaching strategies. This study aims to determine the appropriate use of teaching strategies by teachers when teachers teach speaking and problems faced by teachers when applying teaching strategies.

Speaking is an interactive process of constructing meaning that involves producing and receiving information Brown (1994), Burns and Joyce (1997). Speaking is language functions (or patterns) that tend to recur in certain discourse situations (e.g., declining an invitation or requesting time off from work), can be identified and charted. Speaking is an important part of the process of learning and teaching a foreign language as a second language. Although important, over the years, "talking" talks become unimportant and English teachers continue to teach speaking as a repetition of practice or memorizing dialogue Burns and Joyce (1997).

Strategies of Teaching Speaking
Speaking is an important part of the basic English learning process. Although it is important to consider what is done over and over again there is no point if the method given for teaching is wrong. More teachers in Indonesia when teaching speaking only uses rote dialogue without making an English discussion. Learning systems like this that make our English less effective. English speaking learning system must prioritize students’ communication skills, because by making students will be able to communicate themselves to learn to use the rules of English when communicating. Among others, the strategies of teaching speaking are discussion, role-play, creative tasks, and drilling.
